Region's builders 'excellent'

HOUSING Minister Kevin Prince has praised the excellent standard of building and construction in the Albany regions when presenting awards at the Housing Industry Association's Albany Homes of the Year competition.

The enthusiasm shown for this year's competition by regional members of the housing industry was reflected in the 42 entries.

"It is an industry that appears to thrive on competition while at the same time striving for excellence to provide a quality product at a fair price," Mr Prince said.

"These awards provide the opportunity for the industry to show they are serious about what they do and have a commitment to do even better."

"I commend the Housing Industry Association for the continuing success of the awards; members of the local industry who support them and the sponsors, without whom there would be no competition."
